'Ex-Bundsman' Arrested in Police Hunt for Terrorists.

NEW YORK, July 5 .- (AP)-Detectives, in relentless mood, tonight sought to connect the theft of 39 sticks of dynamite with a bomb which blasted two of their comrades to death yesterday soon after it had been hustled from its hiding place in the New York World's Fair British pavilion. The dynamite was stolen May

State Agencies Given Higher Quarter Budget

General Fund' Group To Get 75 Per Cent of Grants.

State agencies financed by the general fund, including education, welfare and health, will receive 75 per cent of appropriations for the opening quarter of the fiscal year-an increase of 15 per cent over the quarter ended June 30.

This boost in income to approximately 12 departments was dis-closed in a budget message yesterday from Governor Rivers to all department heads.

The State Auditing Department said the increase was made possi-ble by expanded revenue from the tax, which goes into the general fund.

Rivers instructed heads of departments financed by allocations to submit their budget requests for this quarter on the basis of actual needs. Hence the percentage of allocations they will receive will not be known until budgets are ap-Within this group falls such agencies as the Highway Department, the Agricultural Department and the Public Service Com-

The State Board of Education was instructed to notify all local school officials of the amount of available funds "so that there can be no mistake for the year in the amount available to them."

All agencies were instructed to attach to their budget request a personnel roster showing monthly salaries. The Governor's budget message closed thus:

More than 41,000 cars loaded with coal and unconsigned now are being held at mines, the association said, adding that this "represents a waste of potential transportation capacity which can be avoided."

ATLANTA. GA., JULY 6, 1940.

Death of a Nation

Nothing in all the centuries of war, including even those years when fact was emerging from mythology, matches the naval battle between the French and English navies.

It is but another chapter in the stunning collapse of the French army; the yet unclear story of treachery, the surrender, the apparent eagerness of certain elements of the government and the armed forces to work with

In his latest statement, David Lloyd George, former British Prime Minister, boldly makes the assertion the vested interests of France caused the collapse and that the present government does not at all represent the will of the French people but the vested interests who seek to salvage their own wealth and position.

He declares that the first step in their program, leading to collapse, was the fettering of the press and persecuting the free opinions of others.

He asks if the war is to be fought to establish more firmly in his own country "the vested priveleges of a comparatively small section of the community at the expense of the rest . . . if the war is to be converted into a struggle between two Nazi systems, one of them efficient, the other not even yet effective?"

It is a strong statement coming from one of the British leaders who led the fight in the first World War, the one in which the Allies were victorious, the one in which the French bore the brunt of the fighting, in that it was on their own fields for four years without any such collapse as the past weeks have witnessed.

The former war premier apparently believes the French leaders of today had "no real sympathy with liberty" and apparently places the collapse on that basis. The people, the army, the navy did not believe in their leaders.

Politicians the world over might take a lesson from this. The people will grow weary of their form of government, of its leaders, of their voices if those leaders do not offer them something in which they honestly may believe. Without belief there will be no doing.

It would seem that France was so lacking in national unity, so devoid of faith in her own leaders, that many generals in the army sold out; that today the officers and men of some ships would prefer to fight their former ally rather than join them. Their sympathies are with Germany.

Meanwhile, there is no hint the German juggernaut, the only truly modern army in the world, has been slowed down by anything but its own commands.

England faces nights of agony and days of

The day of attack is approaching. There is every feeling that, no matter what the outcome, there is in England a belief in their government.

They have suffered from Chamberlainism, which was unpreparedness. They do not believe in some of their leaders.

But the English do believe in themselves. Those who offer for our political offices might think on these things as the French prepare a new constitution which reduces to a minimum the activities of a parliament and local government and substitutes in its place a dictatorship and the rule of one man.

Mr. Dempsey's Defenders

Jack Dempsey, one-time "Man Mauler," is not without his defenders. His recent appearance in Atlanta, in which he knocked out a fat and helpless wrestler, saw him puffing and wobbly of knee at the end of the second-round

Some of us feared the Dempsey legend, which is a part of our folklore, would be destroyed if Dempsey kept making such appear-

His defenders, most of whom have reached "the dangerous forties" in their march along life's pathway, write in to say that it is a distinct tonic to them to see a man of 45 engaged in a prize fight, even a poor one. It makes them feel younger and some of them have even gone into training by walking home from the office or mowing the lawn. There is no end to the Dempsey influence.

"Americans," says a publicist, "drop anything as soon as it becomes a bore." Uh-huh. We put up with a depression for years because of its never-failing charm.

It appears to be the consensus that a nation isn't exactly geared for war that requires a six-day week of nobody but bicycle racers.

Unfit Soldiers

British army physicians, examining recruits and conscripts for their army early in the European war, were amazed by the poor physical condition of thousands who came before them.

Hundreds of young men who should have been in good condition had physical faults brought on by failure to take care of their bodies, which had gone soft and unresistant to even the more mild diseases.

It is alarming to read that a large number of our own young men who now are seeking to enter the army, navy, marine corps and air force are being turned down because of phys-

Undoubtedly one of the chief factors in the success of the German army was the physical fitness of its soldiers who could maintain the tremendous drive day after day.

Twenty years ago Germany ordered a national campaign of exercises and athletic development. It is easy for a totalitarian country to issue orders and obtain obedience. Physical training must be voluntary in our own country and its objective should be not merely the army, but our own individual and national health,

Crossing the war monsters of land and air to evolve something in the nature of a flying tank would be Mars' idea of eugenics.

The Real Tycoons

One cannot help but wonder whether or not there is any turning over in graves on the part of our business tycoons of "the good old days" when railroad presidents, manufacturers and land owners were the makers of big money.

In those days the stage and entertainment generally were a bit beyond the pale. They were not quite respectable. An actor or an actress was viewed with suspicion by "the best people."

The Treasury Department of the United States has published the highest salaries paid in the United States. In the first ten were a manufacturer of soap, a steel man and a manufacturer of business machines. The remaining seven of the first ten were movie stars. The second ten included a tobacco company president, the president of an automobile company, an insurance executive and, again, seven movie

Shirley Temple draws more money than William S. Knudsen. Claudette Colbert rates higher than all but one or two of the leading executives. Entertainment has come along rather fast since the days of the "flickers" and the era when Lillian Russell was being given diamond-studded bikes.

Democracy is the better way. Among the 300 candidates on a ballot this fall, one is almost bound to find his prejudices appealed to.

Atlanta's New Star

Atlanta has a new star in the movie firmament. Or, at least, the new star soon will be seen in the Hollywood heavens.

Gene Eckman, 12 years old, has accomplished what thousands of other youngsters dream of doing. He has won a star role in an important movie. The young Atlantan will play a lead role in the filming of Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings' Pulitzer Prize novel, "The Yearling," one of the most appealing and popular novels to be written in and of the south, has a Florida locale. Some of the picture will be filmed in

There is just no telling. It may be that within a dozen years or so Gene Eckman will be coming back to Atlanta for some premiere to stir the city as did Mr. Clark Gable when he came here for "Gone With the Wind." All Atlanta will wish young Mr. Eckman well. And will go to see his picture.

The last of the Presidents who continued to look like Santa Claus after he was elected was Rutherford B. Hayes.

Any resemblance of the Nazi notable, General Steulpnagel, to a living radio performer of the same name is entirely coincidental. Besides, the latter is only a colonel.

Editorial of the Day

PRIVATE ARMIES (From The Dallas Morning News.)

Of a suggestion that the American Legion sponsor a private army, a news item prematurely and apparently disagreeably broken, the order's national commander, Raymond J. Kelly, says that he has nothing to say until the national executive committee has considered it. It is to be hoped that failure to consider such a proposal seriously will leave it in the realm of matters of which nothing may be said. For, well-intentioned or bad, private armies have no proper place in this country.

You know the way the thing usually crops . "There is a lot of disloyalty in the country . a lot of loose talk . . . a lot of this Communism or German Fifth Column stuff . had better do something about it." Usually the folk who talk that way, or most of them, do But the first thing you know, you have masked and hooded men taking the law into their own hands and frequently taking it unwise-We have had a few private armies of sorts

What Legionnaires apparently have in mind is not an army at all, but a co-operative citizen mobilization to assist the government. This is all very well if it does not get in the way. But it

Whatever we do to confront our national and international problems, we should do as a nation and as a democracy, enlisting under government authority and supervision our whole power to accomplish a desired end. Citizenship can be most helpful in insisting that congress act and in refraining from doing under its own steam things that may complicate our position.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

BY JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

THE WHEELER-LEWIS BANNER WASHINGTON, July 5. L. Lewis and Senator Burton K. Wheeler may prove to be the shadow cast before a coming event far larger in import than the mere formation of a third party. A third party, dedicated to Townsendism, extreme isolationism and Lewis' brand of ClO-ism, was what Lewis and Wheeler talked about at the Townsendite old-age pension convention in St. Louis. But there is more to it than that,

The real background of the Lewis-Wheeler talk is the allimportant fact that, by nominating Willkie at Philadelphia, the Republicans firmly rejected the English-model appeasement program insistently offered them by the adherents of Senator Robert That is the predominant factor in American politics today.

The Republicans did offer a special opportunity to Senator Wheeler, who has a large national following, is an isolationist of the most extreme type, and has never been above seizing opportunities as they presented themselves. The opportunity, as one of the senator's friends put it today, is "to show Roosevelt where he gets off and play a big part by rallying the peace vote." In somewhat less pleasant terms, it is to raise the tattered banner of appeasement under which the Republicans refused to march.

STRANGE BEDFELLOWS Appeasement makes strange bed-fellows. Lewis went to Philadelphia to make an embittered attack on the President's policies, and particularly on his foreign policy and preparedness program, be-fore the Republican platform committee. His statement savored strongly of the CIO leaders who now appear to be his chief advisers and who, if not Stalinites themselves, have at least upheld the Stalinites' hands in the CIO. Lewis and the Communist labor crowd have always been anathema to business. Yet a surprising number of influential Republican businessmen in Philadelphia cheered the Lewis statement as though it had come straight from former President Herbert Hoover. While the struggle between appeasers and Willkieites was still in progress, Senator Wheeler was also asked to approve the foreign policy plank in the Repub-

These events, quite obviously, were related to what happened later at St. Louis. Lewis and Senator Wheeler have always been Both detest the President with all their hearts and souls. Both Lewis and his chief advisers share Wheeler's views on foreign policy. What could be more natural, therefore, than for them to suggest a third party movement to the Townsendites after their failure at Philadelphia?

Furthermore, their suggestion cannot be laughed off. The Townsendites and other old-age pensioners constitute one solid block of fanatical votes such a party would get. The more violent peace people are another such block. The labor voters who would follow wis would hardly be numerous, but they too would help. Nazi sympathizers who want nothing better than a political party to talk appeasement would go along with enthusiasm. And unless line changes overnight, as it now may do, the Communists and other extreme left groups whose co-operation they can count on would throw their strength into the pot. Not all these groups would be welcomed as supporters by most political chieftains. Yet, with such a third party, Lewis and Wheeler could make a considerable amount of noise.

MR. WESTRICK'S WORK Nor is it certain that the Townsend fanatics, the Communists and Nazi Bundists, the peace-at-any-price people, and the Lewis wing of the CIO would prove the only Wheeler followers. Since his fight against the President's court bill, Wheeler has had many business friends. He has done everything possible, despite his previous record on the anti-business side of the political fence, to improve these connections. And, since the fall of France, appeasement on the English model has begun to be a popular doctrine among certain powerful businessmen.

Gerhardt Westrick, the German commercial counselor, has been working hard in the New York financial district. His story is precisely the same story that men just like him told English and French businessmen after the seizing of Vienna, after Munich, and after the fall of Prague. "We are satisfied now," he says, "We are all businessmen. We want to buy many things in the United States. Let's get together and make a trade." The Westrick sales talk completely fails to explain such ominous phenomena as the intensive Fifth Column activity in South America. But wishful thinking will blind shrewd eyes, and Westrick has had some success. Thus it is no wonder that wise men, both in the administration and in the group around Wendell Willkie, are thoroughly alarmed by the possibility of a great American appeasement drive this summer.

Stories are beginning to come through. It now is asserted that hundreds of American planes waited in harbors while French aviation interests sought "more favorable business arrangements." It now is said that graft was common on all war contracts. Men are coming out with stories of contracts awarded long ago for tanks and no tanks built; of commitments for national defense ignored or inadequately filled.

The Maginot Line was there. They felt safe. There is no telling how much that line took out of France in intangibles and tangibles. No one understands why the line was not extended past the Belgian border. No one understands anything, except that France was not prepared with guns or government; with spirit or shells.' We have had a sort of Maginot Line in this country. It is a

We all admit that, behind our Maginot Line of complacency, something has happened to our national fiber and unity. We do not think it is too late. In some measure, no one yet is sure whether great or large, the man Hitler has pierced our own Maginot Line.

STRAWS IN THE WIND The Willkie nomination may have been a straw in the wind. He was something new. He did not conform to the old patterns of Re-It may be the people are weary of the old faces, the old acts.

Willkie is not a party man. He does not mind breaking party lines any more than does Roosevelt. There will be in his race a melting of party lines, as there was when Roosevelt ran the first and second time.

Willkie's real test comes now. In the convention he was an individual. His party now has taken him over. He must depend on its leaders for advice and the conduct of his campaign. The people will be wondering whether the Willkie of the campaign will be the Willkie of the convention. They will be wondering whether or not the mould of conformity will press him into the customary shape or whether he will, like Roosevelt, escape it. The people seem generally interested in national affairs. breaking of our Maginot Line of complacency was effective. It will be too bad if someone comes along saying the line was not really broken; that all is well, that we again may become complacent and

The next President and the next congress have a responsibility greater than any that has existed since the congress of 1776. The people are more concerned about the future of their government and its course.

There is more cynicism today about local, state and national government than ever before. It must be erased.

THE STATE CONTEST Somehow I was disappointed in the speeches by the candidates for governor as delivered on Thursday. There was too much of sameness about them. They all were against use of the military; against waste; against more taxes; against increases in costs. There was a definite sa ness in them. A number of persons listened for some hint as to Georgia's place in the national defense plans; for a discussion of Georgia's relationship to the administration; for some debate on Mr. Willkie and Mr. Roosevelt; for some discussion of national affairs. Surely Georgia, as one of the states, must participate.

Perhaps the candidates were putting out their "feeler" speeches. The real issues will be discussed later. Or, at least, one hopes so. Opening speeches have a habit of being in favor of less waste in government, lower or no more taxes, the efficacy of calomel and the old-time religion. Georgia, too, along with her sister states, has developed a cynicism which has been present for a number of years. It is at no greater peak today than it has been in other periods of stress. Unfortunately, the cynicism does not seem to drive many more to the registration books or the polling booths. Indeed, the politicians have developed a cynicism about the sincerity of the people themselves and their interest in government. Unfortunately, both are correct.

Dodgers Battle Bees 20 Innings To Win Sensational Struggle, 6-2

Most Embarrassing This can be a most embarrassing world, at times. The other day I made some mention of Nashville small talk in connection with the possibility of the Vols leading the Southern league race from start to finish.

The idea was that if the Vols did it they'd set a Southern league record. I must plead a lapse on that one. Yesterday J. Earle Tippett, of 316 Parkway drive,

"If my memory serves correctly, the Crackers established this record in 1936 when Eddie Moore led the Atlanta team composed of Hooks, Lipscomb, Chatham, Hill, Hutcheson, Hamel, Mailho, Richards, Galvin, Lindsey, Al Williams, Leonard, Bud Thomas, Schmidt, Durham and Billy Bayne to a league pennant without ever being out of first place from April to September, opening to closing of the season.

Following receipt of Mr. Tippett's letter, there was a phone call from Harold Foreman, statistical chief of the Howe News Bureau.
"Listen, chum," said Foreman, "I want to read something to you out of the baseball guide of 1937. It was written by a fellow who signed his named Jack Troy.

"It says, 'The '35 Cracker team was out of first place for only one day. And in 1936 fans followed a club that never And how astonishing it was how clearly it all came back

But let's not worry too much about Nashville even tying our record, men. It's a long way to September, as well as Too Bad I feel due an apology from the Vols, anyway. After spending half a column welcoming them and writing about their virtues and fine qualities, look what has happened

Greek George felt it necessary to call Umpire Red Jones all those four-words-censored names and then spent some more time destroying the baseball club's

And I distinctly recall seeing Mr. Poffenberger and all the other Vols standing in front of the dugout shaking their fists in the general direction of our noble lads.

Is it just barely possible the league leaders can't take it?

In Again, Out Again Baseball has charged past the traditional halfway mark and baseball's most publicized rookie has slipped out of the lineup as quietly as he entered it last week. That is to say, John Rucker is riding the New York Giants' bench again. Admirers of the young Crabapple speed merchant were hopeful that once he got back in the lineup, he would be there to stay. But maybe the grade, after all, is just a little too steep the first year.

Once he returned to the Cracker lineup in center field last year, they couldn't get him out. And he kept on improving to such an extent that he appeared a cinch to make

Young Charlie Gilbert, Larry's son, also was a brilliant Southern league graduate. But Charlie can't make the grade with Brooklyn, either.

It is possible both boys need a season before they can get both feet firmly planted on the ground and feel at home in a major league atmosphere.

Control Leo Moon, who always has had more control on the field—than off—is doing a noble job of pitching for Spartanburg. Pitching for a club that is hopelessly entrenched in last place, Leo has won eight games and lost five.

But, most amazing of all, he has walked only seven men in 108 innings. He went 55 consecutive innings without walking a batter. He broke the streak July 4, when he walked one man.

I'll never forget Leo Moon. Leo had been seeing something of the bright lights at Beaumont, Texas, a couple of seasons ago. He had enjoyed himself immensely.

The Crackers had won three in a row and then tied one. Leo was notified he was going to pitch. He skipped the bright lights that night, and the next afternoon he allowed the Exports three skimpy hits as the Crackers closed out the series—and won their first Dixie series.

"Greek" George, Nashville catcher, was fined $25 and suspended for three days yesterday for using abusive language and profanity in Thursday's Nashville-Atlanta baseball game.

President Trammell Scott, of the Southern Association, imposed this penalty after receiving a report from Umpire "Red" Jones who banished George in the tenth inning after the hard-hitting backstop protested when he was called out on strikes. The three-day suspension is effective immediately.

The abrupt removal of George forced Manager Larry Gilbert to finish out the game with Centerfielder Oris Hockett behind the plate, Felderman already having been in the game as a pinch hitter. Atlanta won, 5-4.

Partial Text of Dr. Truett's Sermon on 'Forgiveness'

A partial text of Dr. George W. Truett's sermon, "Man, Thy Sins Are Forgiven Thee," delivered yesterday morning at the Druid Hills Baptist church, follows:

Inasmuch as this is the last week-day morning service, when you are assembled here from various congregations, you will allow me to take a moment to say how dear this fellowship has been to me-the fellowship of this dear church and pastor whose guest I am, and then with others of you, fellow-preachers and members of your congregations from this city and even beyond. This fellowship has greatly warmed my heart. My life is made richer, deeper, larger happier, better, and I trust more useful because of these several days of fellowship with you all.

am taking a moment also to follow up the pastor's word that we seek to take advantage of the brief days left. There are to be no services Saturday, but the day can be turned into glorious account just the same by your own per-sonal service, your visits, your talks, your conferences, your per-sonal invitations and appeals. Think of every Christian now in this crowded place giving some time to visits and conferences and personal appeal to those around you who need you. Think of the inactive Christians detached from church membership. Give them a personal invitation to come with with CHRIST you, to help you, and together all of us help the cause of Christ forward. And there are many about us who are not Christians. Not one of these ought to be overlooked. In a series of meetings it is a with you. It is a beautiful thing to give an invitation to someone to come and share with you something you are having. Then go expression, on, with your own modest and faithful, of your interest in their soul.

'Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God." You have done a great thing when you ask an unsaved person, and such a way, that you succeed in winning an unsaved person me and hear the Word of God. "My Word shall not return unto me void." In these days, if we do not put ourselves personally into this great matter, the unsaved world will go on and miss the house of prayer and public

And when he saw their faith, he said unto him, Man, thy sins are forgiven thee. And the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this which speak-eth blasphemies? Who can forgive sins, but God alone? But when Jesus perceived their thoughts, he answering said unto them, What reason ye in your hearts? What is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or say, Rise up and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive sins, (He said unto the sick of the palsy), I say unto you, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go into thine house. And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God. Jesus, in the passage just read, was talking to them, and here came four men, and the crowd climbed upon the housetop, and let the man down into the midst be-Jesus. This started a tumult and the occasion turned out to be one of vast significance. And from that incident, we gain two or three simple lessons.

First of all, some cases require extraordinary effort if brought to christ—united, combined, co-op- up before the daylight came, there Christ—united, combined, co-op-erative effort. Four men were waiting, if haply she might speak necessary to bring the paralyzed man. Even so, there are men and women around us who will require the effort, united and combined, of several if they are to be won to Christ. Where people are preoccupied—people in the affairs of the world—unusual, extraordinary efforts must be put forth or they will not be challenged for Christ and His gospel.

Many are brought by the efforts of one. We see them. The mother brings her daughter to the preach-er and that precious girl tells how she has been won to Christ because of the prayers and words of her mother. Or the father brings nis son and the boy tells how his father's talk down by the barn or on the way to town led him to accept Christ as his Savior. Or the Sunday school teacher brings his pupil, friend brings friendwhat greater proof of friendship than our expression of interest in one's spiritual welfare. Just like Andrew went out and brought his brother. But others will require extraordinary effort, combined, co-oeprative. I present that truth or your consideration.

Here is a sick man, brought to Jesus by four of his friends, and the first thing Jesus did-"Thy sins are forgiven thee," and that started the crowd. "Who is this which speaketh blasphemies? Who can forgive sins but God alone?" He knew what was in their hearts. Being God, He knew. And He "What is easier, to say Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of Man hath power upon earth to forgive sins, I say unto thee, arise, and take up thy couch, and go into thine house."

SAYS FORGIVENESS COMES FIRST

beg you to notice that the irst thing he did was to forgive in. This is basic, fundamental. Certain social reformers in the land put curing the sick body first. That doesn't come first. The ragedy of the world is sin, and Christ came to save his people from their sin. If the tree is good, then the fruit will be good. "Every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit."

"Ye must be born again." Man panaceas are offered for the ills of the world. The best news to Charlie Chan fans since the last film Warner steps of a street car at Marietta Oland (the original Chan) made before his untimely death is statement, he asserted he had "Charlie Chan's Murder Cruise," never made a claim upon any now at the Capitol.

Sidney Toler portrays the Chinese detective bent on capturing the murderer of his best friend. The action takes place on a boat, chiefly, with murders occurring frequently. The audience is given ample clues to solve the mystery themselves-and some probably do. The makers have not forgotten good comedy improves

Gene Eckman Picked To Play Role of 'Jody'

Atlanta Youth's 'Growth' To Be Observed for Six Months.

By LEE ROGERS.

"Jody" will have an Atlanta accent when "The Yearling" is filmed-unless the medical profession is fooled in their prediction that 12-year-old Gene Eckman won't have a change of voice before next March. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer signed Gene to a six-month contract, it was announced yesterday, during which time they will "observe his growth" and if he doesn't grow too fast, the most-sought-after screen role—since the search for "Scarlett O'Hara"—will be permanent property of the kid from 1535 Mozley drive, S. W., Atlanta, Ga. News Confirmed. Gene's father, Burt E. Eckman, confirmed the good news yester-day. He had a wire from Billy Grady, casting director, who picked Gene out of about 1,500 At-Grady. lanta boys who tested for the part here during the winter. And the Eckman family is planning a midnight celebration for the new star on Hollywood horizon when he returns from Hollywood with his mother at 11:30 clock Monday night. After all he's the first Atlantan since Evelyn Keyes to crash the golden gates. Others there now are Dixie Dunbar, Jane Withers and Lee Tracy.

Young Eckman is the survivor of six southern boys taken to Hol-lywood for final tests. John Kelton, of Tampa, is still under consideration in case something goes rong with the manner of Gene's development-something that might make the doctors wrong about him not growing too fast and predicting his voice won't Returns in August

Gene will return to Hollywood in August and work on the film is scheduled to begin March 1. The Atlanta boy is a scholar and very musical, as are his two brothers and sister. He plays the piano well enough to win scholarship and he loves animals-which may be the reason he feels so confident with animals before the klieg lights.

If You're Caught Smiling, Wife Asks THESE WOMEN! You May Win Cash, Tickets Husband To Take Pledge

By Dr. William Brady.

Recently we described here case, typical of thousands, of a child aged 41 years, who has brought much unhappiness on his family, having twice lost good jobs through his drinking. The child had finally taken a pledge and kept it for a year; at the end of the year he renewed his pledge and kept it faithfully for the second year. Now the year is expiring, his wife wants him to take the pledge for another year, but oddly enough the child argues that he doesn't need to take a pledge now and he thinks taking the pledge would be a confession of weakness. Many of his friends take that attitude and openly decry the idea of renewing the pledge. And unhappily his wife hesitates to insist lest the child get the idea that she doesn't trust him without it and so lose confidence in himself and perhaps begin drinking again.

The pledge apparently had no such effect the first two years. Surely there can be no "friend" whose opinions or wishes matter as much as the opinions and wishes of the child's wife and famhes of the child's wife and fam-But the case illustrates the ficult psychology of inebriety. difficult psychology of inebriety. The raising of the peculiar objection to renewing the pledge now makes one wonder whether the child has really kept it as his wife believes.

Another child puts in a word at this juncture:
"The other night after a alcoholic session, my wife called my attention to your column in which your current theme on the alcoholic problem is weakness, nothing more, nothing else, in the individual.

How many times have you been drunk? If at all, you would know drinking is a relief from bore-dom, a relaxation."

This child reveals the simple truth when he says that "anything that comes between them and a drink they push over." It matters not to the inebriate or the dipsomaniac how innocent or how sacred the thing may be. It is a childish attitude.

Speaking of childishness, it may be well to note the difference between the mentality of a normal child and that of a moron, or an imbecile, or an idiot. An idiot is a person whose mental development never advances beyond that of a normal three-year-old child. New Library Ready For Archivist

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK .- I seem to be in the business of correcting statements these days! Apparently, in saying that Park Commissioner Moses and Mayor LaGuardia gave the people of the lower end of Manhattan a very lovely parkway, I left out many of the people who really did the work.

This I did not intend to do, and I think we should all be grateful to Borough President of Manhattan Stanley Isaacs, who had complete charge of the construction of the East River drive; to Walter D. Binger, commissioner of borough works, and Lester C. Hammond, chief engineer in charge of design and construction.

The letters giving me all this information came from Mrs. Mabel H. Pooler and Georgia C. Van Veln. I am very grateful to them for correcting me. I have also heard from two or three other interested citizens, and one of them, Mr. A. J. Davis, suggests that I should thank the taxpayers whose properties were condemned, and bemoans the fact that depositors in the savings banks are only getting 2 per cent interest on their money because the banks owned most of the condemned property. Of course, we are always grateful to taxpayers who make any improvement possible, but the 2 per cent interest we receive on our savings accounts does not seem to me so small, for if we desired we could take out our money and put it to work in some way in which we might employ more people and bring us a higher rate of interest. We put it in the savings banks because we feel that there it is entirely safe and guaranteed by the government. Savings banks are restricted in their investments in order to insure the safety of our deposits and that is why we accept a smaller amount of interest.

It certainly was nice to greet my husband and our son, Jimmy, when they arrived at the house this morning. Major Hooker and I had a nice but rather short ride, since I am trying to do a number of things before my regular broadcast which precedes the brief ceremonies, when the new library will be finally turned over to the archivist.

Perhaps the fascination about even the smallest place in the country is that there is always something you want to do. I have discovered a stonemason near by who lays walls in the old-fashioned way. Our lane leading off from the main highway has always been unmarked, so now I am planning two low stone gateposts and some wrought-iron letters from Mr. Denny's forge in Poughkeepsie, which should make it easier to identify the entrance to these cottages.

We are very proud of our garden this year. The vegetables seem be thriving with plenty of rain, even though the sun visits us fitfully and the weather is more nearly like autumn than mid-

By d'Alessio Generosity Is Secret Of Woman's Friendship

By Caroline Chatfield.

Not long ago I heard an old lady say she hoped she was not a greedy person, but there are two things she couldn't get enough of: friends and flowers. Incidentally she is the only person I've ever known who kept up, not ony with friends of her youth, but with their children and their children's children. If she lives to a hundred she will be close to their children even down to the fourth and fifth generation.

Looking at her and wondering at the marvelous gift she has for friendship, really it amounts to genius, I asked myself what she had that others hadn't; what she did that others left off doing. Here's her secret: she's gentle and generous, tolerant and sincere with plenty of courage and a lovely sense of humour. exudes sweetness and light as she moves about her quiet way.

From her small garden in which she has a bit of everything worth growing, there are few of her friends who haven't had a root, a bulb, a cutting or a bunch of blossoms. The flowers which she says she's greedy for are among things she's most generous with. She not only shares her own but she goes a-visiting and suggests that you give yours away too-always with the humorous and kindly twinkle in her eye that would shame you if you were tempted to hold back.

There's much more: when friends or acquaintances have sickness or sorrow, she's among the first to ring the doorbell carrying her small poseys. Without talking, without weeping, she says her sympathy like a benediction. Peace seems to flow from her. Perhaps this is her

And more: she's not afraid to speak her piece. She can say the thing you don't want to hear, but need to hear, say it in such a way that it leaves no sting. A gentle rebuke, a slight suggestion that you may be wrong, yet with it all no holier-than-thou-attitude. there's her courage and her toler-

Sun or rain, heat or cold, she is always going on her small errands of mercy and friendliness. Often times at home she sits and sews on small gifts which she makes and gives wholesale. And I think when she's asleep she is dreaming of for a friend already secure in her affection or perhaps dreaming of something she can do to make another friend.

Her secret? It is giving. That's ill; giving. Of course one must have large reserves to give and give, large reserves of coin of the realm of friendship.

THE MORTAL STORM

On Freya's Return, She Goes to Her Father's Study for a Talk With Him

Against the wishes of her Nazi slep-brothers, Freya Roth invites to her home Hans Breitner, a young Communist who has rescued her from a group of angry peasants during one of her skiing expeditions and to whom, despite his philosophy, she has been immediately attracted. When Hans is attacked by Olaf and Emil as well as by Freya's aristocratic admirer, Fritz Maberg, Freya's digust of the Nazi regime groow. Visiting the estate of Fritz's parents, long friends of the Roths, Freya is pursued by young Mayberg. Instantly she admits that she is in love with Hans, much to Fritz's horror. Aware that it has long been the plan of the Mabergs and the Roths for Freya and Fritz to marry, Freya goes to his mother, the Grafin von Maberg, and tells her that she will not marry Fritz. The Grafin already vaguely apprehensive because Freya is half-Jewish, pretends to understand Ereya's attitude toward her son. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

To tell him nothing she was startled to find that she would be simple, for he would ask would be simple, for he would ask no questions; but to tell him a little thing, and that she felt relieved, the (and no young person likes to rather than distressed, by his tell a parent much) was not safe—
